The Adventures of _____ the

_____ and _____ (adjective)   (adjective)

It was morning, and I had just finished eating my _____ and (name of food)

drinking my pint of _____ when I heard a scream from outside.
(name of beverage)

It sounded like the cry of a wounded _____. I grabbed my (kind of animal)

_____ put on my _____ and quickly (kitchen utensil)   (item of clothing)

rushed outside.

"_____," I said. "What foul treachery is afoot?" The village of (exclamation)

_____ was besieged by a giant _____ (name of a mall or shopping center)   (kind of monster)

who was rampaging, ravaging, _____, and generally running (verb starting with "r")

amok. They were accompanied by a band of _____, a (another kind of monster)

posse of _____, and a gaggle of _____.
(kind of cartoon character)   (kind of animal)

I was outnumbered at least _____ to one.
(number greater than 1)

But that didn't matter, so long as I had my courage, my lucky _____, (noun)

and my trusty horse, _____. I mounted the beast and (model of car)

charged into the fray, bellowing my war cry, "_____!"
(what you say when you eat spinach)

I smote the enemies with _____ smites and made them cry
(adjective)

"_____," as I deftly dodged their (exclamation)

_____ attacks. Before long I had driven the evil forces back (adjective starting with "d")

to the local _____ and even had time to stop and pick (name of restaurant)

up some _____ before again joining the fray.
(kind of food)

Little did I know that they were lead by a force much darker and more sinister than any bard could imagine, my arch nemeses, _____.

(a common name)

But I had a trick up my _____. I reached in and pulled (item of clothing)

out the ancient artifact that had been entrusted to me by the members of cult of _____. I did the only thing that you can do (name of a band)

with such a powerful object. I _____ it. Suddenly there was (verb)

a huge flash of _____ light. I _____ the (color)   (verb)

_____ of the _____ and quickly _____ (noun)   (noun)   (verb)

the _____, then dove into the _____ nearby.
(noun)   (something you could fit into)

At last it was over. The remaining villagers, all _____ of them, (number)

thanked me for my bravery and striking good looks. Then I mounted _____ and rode off into the sunset, saying (model of car, again)

_____, even though I actually
(what you might say as you ride off into the sunset)

lived in the village and really had no place to go.

Bard-O-Matic Instant Adventure Song Creation Kit Record Sheet

Instructions: Simply fill out the blanks on this sheet, then use what you wrote to complete the attached tale of adventure. Feel free to substitute your own name for the first blank if you're feeling extra-heroic today.

name of a friend _____

adjective _____

adjective _____

name of food _____

name of beverage _____

kind of animal _____

kitchen utensil _____

item of clothing _____

exclamation _____

name of a mall or shopping center _____

kind of monster _____

verb starting with "r" _____

another kind of monster _____

kind of cartoon character _____

kind of animal _____

number greater than 1 _____

noun _____

model of car _____

what you say when you eat spinach _____

adjective _____

exclamation _____

adjective starting with "d" _____

name of restaurant _____

kind of food _____

a common name _____

item of clothing _____

name of a band _____

verb _____

color _____

verb _____

noun _____

noun _____

verb _____

noun _____

something you could fit into _____

number _____

model of car (same as above) _____

what you might say as you ride off into the sunset _____